

Former project goals

By now, you know that goals are important to the success of your project. And you know that they need to be well-defined in order to help keep your project on track!

Think back to a time when you worked on a personal or professional project that did not have clearly defined goals.

What was the outcome?

What would have you done differently knowing what you just learned about the importance of project goals?