

Brag about yourself

As you begin to consider which jobs will be suitable for you, think about the things you've accomplished, both professionally and personally, big and small.

Maybe your boss and/or colleagues have complimented your creative mind, or your work ethic. Maybe you were recently promoted or you received some kind of achievement award at work. Maybe you've managed to get two kids dressed, ready, and out the door by 8:00 am every day before you head to work. Maybe, you find yourself excelling at this certification.

List some of those wins below--no matter how big or small.