

What do you bring to a team?

Consider the various project roles we just discussed: sponsors, team members, users/customers, stakeholders, and project managers. Then, think about a time when you had to put together a team to accomplish a goal. This could be a professional goal or a time you were planning a celebration, scheduling a game, or organizing a trip. Who were the members of your team?

Which role (or roles) did each person fill?

Were project roles formally assigned or informally filled?

What role did you play?

How did each project role help or hinder the project's outcome?
