Meet and greet

So far, we've been introducing you to the world of project management. Now, it's your turn to introduce yourself to your classmates! Your intro should give your fellow learners a good idea of who you are and should be 5-10 sentences long. If you don't know what to write, here are a few suggestions:

Suggested Topics

- Where are you from? Share with others which part of the world you're from or where you currently live. If you wish to include this information in your post, it's a good idea not to give away specific details like your personal mailing address.

- Why did you decide to enroll into the Google Project Management Certificate? Share any passions for organizing projects, working with people, planning events or anything else relevant from your background.

- What are your expectations of this course? Are you excited to learn about project management? What do you hope to put into place in your life the day this course is over?

- What are your other interests? Put something in your post that will help others relate to you.

Then, visit the discussion forums ↗ to check out what others have shared about themselves. Say "hi" to at least two of your fellow classmates and make connections with them.

Participation is optional

Your Reply